

Elena Andrushchenko is a leading researcher at the A.M. Gor'kii Institute of World Literature of the Russian Academy of Sciences, Doctor of Philology and Professor. Her research interests are the history of Russian literature of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, the works of Dmitrii Sergeevich Merezhkovskii and textual criticism.

Antoni Bortnowski is affiliated with the Institute of Russian and Ukrainian Philology at the Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. He holds a doctorate degree in Russian Literature. The title of his PhD dissertation was Historical Time in the Emigration Prose of Mikhail Osorgin. His main research interest is the study of the representations of Kiev in Russian and world literature of the second half of the nineteenth century and the first half of the twentieth. He works on literary works by authors of the first wave of Russian emigration and on Russo-phone literature in Ukraine. In his works he discusses memory, self-identification and national consciousness.

Claudia Criveller is Associate Professor in Russian Literature and Language at the University of Padua. Her main research areas are Russian Modernism and early twentieth-century Russian literature, with a particular focus on Andrei Belyi's works. She has also worked on intersemiotic translation, working on Fedor Dostoevskii's as well as Belyi's works. She has authored theoretical works on Russian autobiographical fiction with a focus on Vladimir Nabokov, Venedikt Erofeev, Andrei Siniavskii and Evgenii Kharitonov.

Magdalena Dąbrowska works at the University of Warsaw, Poland. She is an historian of Russian literature of the eighteenth and early nineteenth century. Her work is devoted to the literary links between Russia and Western Europe as well as to the history of Russian periodicals. She is the author of a monograph on Russian sentimentalism and of numerous publications on Nikolai Karamzin. She is the director of the Institute of Russian Studies at the University of Warsaw. From 2012 to 2018 she was the Director of the Institute of Russian Studies at the University of Warsaw and the Head of the Chair of History of Russian Literature.

Patrizia Deotto is Associate Professor of Russian Language and Literature at the University of Trieste. Her research activity has mainly concentrated on twentieth-century Russian literature, with a particular focus on Russian emigration and on the cultural ties between Italy and Russia. A second research area can be identified in the literary genres of diary, biography and autobiography. She devotes particular attention to the genre of autobiography on commission.

Maria Candida Ghidini is Professor of Russian Literature at the University of Parma. She has studied the relationship between literature and philosophy, focusing on the figures of Gustav Shpet and Viacheslav Ivanov, to whom she has dedicated numerous essays. She is interested in the reception of Shakespeare in Russia and has translated, among other things, Fedor Dostoevskii's The Idiot into Italian. She is the editor in chief of the Russian section of the «Garzantina Letteratura». She has recently edited a selection of Lev Tolstoi's Diaries.

Iaroslav Golubinov is Associate Professor at the Faculty of History in Samara University. His main field of research is the study of social and cultural aspects related to the First World War in different European countries (especially in Russia and the UK). He is the author of several articles in journals and collected volumes. His most important articles are devoted to food supply and nutrition during wartime, rumour and gossip surrounding the war, Russian volunteers and European cultural memory of the Great War.

Andrea Gullotta is Lecturer in Russian at the University of Glasgow. He has also worked for the University of Palermo, the Ca' Foscari University of Venice and the University of Padua, where he obtained his PhD. His main field of research is the literature of the Gulag. He is the author of several articles and of the monograph Intellectual Life and Literature at Solovki 1923-1930. The Paris of the Northern Concentration Camps (Legenda, Cambridge, 2018).

Elena Iufereva is Doctor of Philological Sciences and Professor at the Department of Theory and World Literature at the National Pedagogical Dragomanov University of Kyiv. Her research interests include the impact of internet writing on literature, travel literature, and naïve writing.

Viktoriia Ivashchenko is Associate Professor at the Department of Historiography, Source Studies and Archaeology at the V. N. Karazin National University of Kharkiv, where she is also the Director of the university's Museum of History. Her main research interests are the history of the universities of the Russian Empire from the late eighteenth to early twentieth centuries, memoirs, and oral history.

Dorota Jewdokimow is Associate Professor at the Cultural Studies Institute of the Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. Her research focuses on Russian literature, philosophical, religious and social thought of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and on the semiotics of history. She has carried out research and worked with the Dostoevskii Museum in Saint Petersburg and the St. Sergius Orthodox Theological Institute in Paris. She is the author of monographs on Fedor Dostoevskii (2009), Karolina Kizińska (2014) and on the Idea of Unity of Churches in Russian Thought (2017).

Zbigniew Kaźmierczyk is Associate Professor in the Department of History of Literature at the University of Gdańsk. He has published two monographs, The Work of a Demiurge. Gnostic Experience in the Early Poetry of Czesław Miłosz (2011), and The Slavic Psychomachy of Mickiewicz (2012). He edited multi-author monograph The Religiousness of Czesław Miłosz (2020) and co-edited and co-authored the monograph Adam Mickiewicz and the Russians (2020).

Anna Krasnikova is a Researcher at the Catholic University of Milan (Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore di Milano) and a former Researcher at the Russian State University for the Humanities in Moscow. Her fields of interest are textual criticism, digital philology, Russian literature, speech genres and sociolinguistics.

Tatiana Kuzovkina is Senior Research Fellow at the School of Humanities and Senior Specialist at the Iurii Lotman Semiotics Repository, Tallinn University. She is the holder of a PhD (Tartu University, 2007) and worked at the Laboratory of History and Semiotics from 1990 to 1993 as Iurii Lotman's secretary, and from 1997 to 2007 as a researcher at the Department of Russian Literature, University of Tartu. Since 1997, her work has involved systematizing and describing the archives of Iurii Lotman and Zara Mints. She is also the organizer of the Annual Lotman Days at the University of Tallinn.

Maia Lavrinovich is Senior Research Fellow at the National Research University – Higher School of Economics in Moscow. Her research interests encompass the social history of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, microhistory, history of ideas, and the European and Russian Enlightenment. She is currently working on a large-scale project on the brothers Malinovskii's social advancement in the late eighteenth – early nineteenth century.

Iurii Mikhailin is a journalist, film director and researcher. He is the author of publications on the Gulag.

Mikhail Miliutin is a Lecturer at the Academic Gymnasium of the St. Petersburg State University, of which he has been the head in the years 2014–2016. He participated in 2018–2020 in a research project for the preparation of a new scientific edition of Andrei Bolotov's memoirs (grant from the Russian Foundation for Humanities No. 14-04-00331; grant from the Russian Foundation for Basic Research No. 18-012-00447 A).

Larissa Naidich is Professor Emeritus at the Department of Linguistics of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. Her field of interests are German phonetics and phonology, dialectology, folklore, and theory of translation.

Valentina Parisi is Research Fellow at the University of Pavia. She holds a PhD in Slavic Studies from the State University in Milan. She has received a postdoctoral grant from the Istituto Italiano di Scienze Umane (SUM) in Florence (2009–2011). She has been an EURIAS fellow at the Institute for Advanced Studies, Central European University, Budapest in 2012–2013 and at the Hanse-Wissenschaftskolleg (HWK) in Delmenhorst (Germany) in 2014–2015. She is the author of the volume Il lettore eccedente. Edizioni periodiche del samizdat sovietico, 1956-1990 (Bologna, Il Mulino, 2013).

Ivana Peruško works at the Department of East Slavic Languages and Literatures of the University of Zagreb. She published two monographs: Poetika prognstva. Gor'kij i Bulgakov između srpa i čekića [Poetics of Exile. Gor'kii and Bulgakov between the Hammer and the Sickle, 2013] and Od Oktobra do otpora. Mit o Mit o sovjetsko- jugoslavenskom bratstvu u Hrvatskoj i Rusiji kroz književnost, karikaturu i film. 1917.–1991 [From October to Resistance. The Myth of Yugoslav-Soviet Brotherhood in Literature, Cartoons and Cinema. 1917 – 1991, 2018].

Anna Ponomareva has degrees in Philosophy (MA, Moscow State University), Russian Studies (MPhil, the University of Manchester) and Translation Studies (PhD, UCL). She is a Lecturer at the School of Slavonic and East European Studies (SSEES) at University College London (UCL). In addition to her research on Russian Symbolism, Translation Studies and Pedagogy she is interested in Text and Music. Her chapter Mirror pas de deux: Cranko's Reinvention of Pushkin's Text in His Ballet Onegin (1965) will be soon published in Helen Julia Minors (ed.) Music, Text and Translation, Vol. 2.

Dario Prola is Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Applied Linguistics of the University of Warsaw, where he teaches history of Italian literature, literary translation, and specialised translation. He received a PhD in 2008 from the University of Turin with a dissertation on the theme of myth and representation of the city in Polish literature after 1989. His research interests include contemporary Polish literature, literary translation, and literary relations between Italy and Poland. He is the author of several articles and two monographs: Mito e rappresentazione della città nella letteratura polacca (2014) and Sposato dalla bellezza: l'Italia nella scrittura di Jarosław Iwaszkiewicz (2018).

Elena Rozhdestvenskaia is Professor at the faculty of Social Sciences of the National Research University – Higher School of Economics. Her main research areas are the biographical method in sociology, sociology of war, memory studies, and sociology of gender.

Olga Sazontchik graduated from the Department of Philosophy of the Goethe University of Frankfurt, having defended her dissertation on the Moscow text of Russian literature in 2007. Since 2011 she has been working as a Research Assistant at the Institute of Slavic Studies and Caucasus Studies at the Friedrich Schiller University of Jena. Her interests include Russian literature, primarily of the 20th century, and intermediality.

Dmitri Shalin studied at the Leningrad State University and defended his Candidate of Science degree in 1973, after which he worked in the Leningrad division of the Institute of Sociology, USSR academy of Sciences. In 1975, he emigrated to the USA, where he received a Ph.D. at Columbia University. Since 1991, Dr. Shalin has been Professor of Sociology at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV). He is director of the UNLV Center for Democratic Culture, coordinator of Justice & Democracy Forum series, editor of the Social Health of Nevada Report, co-director of the International Biography Initiative, Erving Goffman Archives, and Russian Culture and Intelligentsia projects. His research interests and publications are in the areas of pragmatism, sociological theory, democratic culture, and Russian society.

Tatjana Shor is an archivist and independent researcher. She has authored books and articles on the history of Russian and Slavic philology, the history of the University of Tartu, biography and source studies of the history of national minorities in Estonia.

Natalia Svetozarova is Professor at the Department of Phonetics of the St. Petersburg State University. Her main areas of interest are experimental phonetics, German and Russian phonology, folklore, and history of linguistics.

Aleksandra Veselova is Senior Researcher at the Institute of Russian Literature (Pushkin House) of the Russian Academy of Sciences since 2003. She graduated from the philological faculty of the St. Petersburg State University in 1996. She has been a Senior Lecturer at the St. Petersburg State University in the period 2003-2007. Since 2014 she directs the project devoted to the publication of Andrei Bolotov's memoirs.

Vadim Wittkowsky teaches at the Institute of Classical Philology of the Humboldt University of Berlin. He is a philologist, Biblical (New Testament), Classical Greek, and Slavonic scholar with interests in Russian poetry of the twentieth century. He obtained his PhD in 2005 (Russian State University for the Humanities, Moscow) and his Habilitation in Classical Philology in 2019 (Humboldt University of Berlin).

Kirill Zubkov graduated from the St. Petersburg State University, where he specialized in Russian language and literature, obtaining a diploma with honors in 2008. He later completed the Graduate School of Philology at the St. Petersburg State University in 2011. He is currently an Associate Professor at the Higher School of Economics (Moscow) and a Research Fellow at the IRLI RAS (Pushkin House).